

Not a sign of poverty was visible May 8, last, at the Grunewald race track near Berlin, fashion day it is called, when the new style gowns are displayed. The picture shows a costume with lattice like sleeves, with the sash and hat band of lemon yellow.

International.

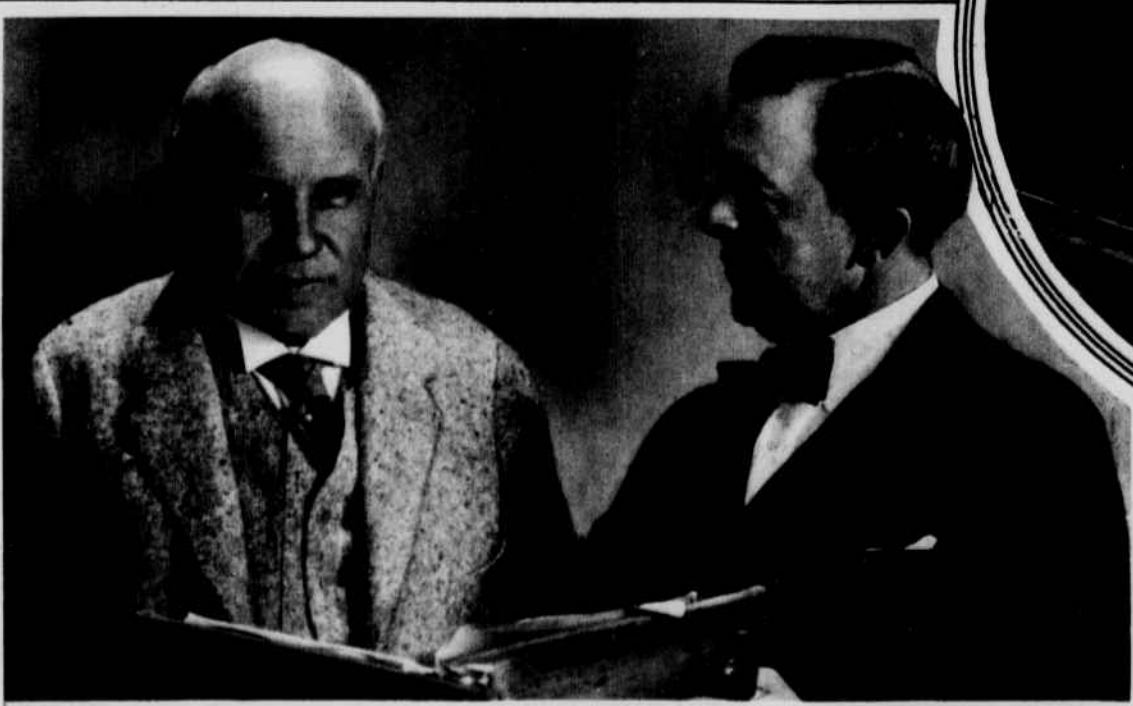

Above.—This black and white checkered costume, seen at the races at Berlin, was one of the costliest displayed.

International.

Mlle. Irene Curie, daughter of the famous discoverer of radium, and Dr. M. Carey Thomas, president of Bryn Mawr College. Mlle. Curie spoke to the Bryn Mawr girls as proxy for her mother, who was too ill to deliver the promised address.

Underwood & Underwood.

Last picture ever taken of the late Franklin K. Lane, former Secretary of the Interior. With him is Rupert Hughes, author, and they are looking at one of Mr. Hughes's recently completed plays.

Goldwyn.

Group of women displaying the new spring styles of Germany at the races at Grunewald. Rich silks, expensive chiffons and heavy lace trimmings on many of the gowns indicated an utter disregard of cost.

International.

At right.—This black chiffon dress, with its white cloth applique and the white fur piece, attracted much attention at the Berlin races.

International.

One of Washington's popular hostesses is Signora Andrea G. Celesia di Vegliasco, formerly Miss Erhart of New York, wife of the secretary of the Italian Embassy.

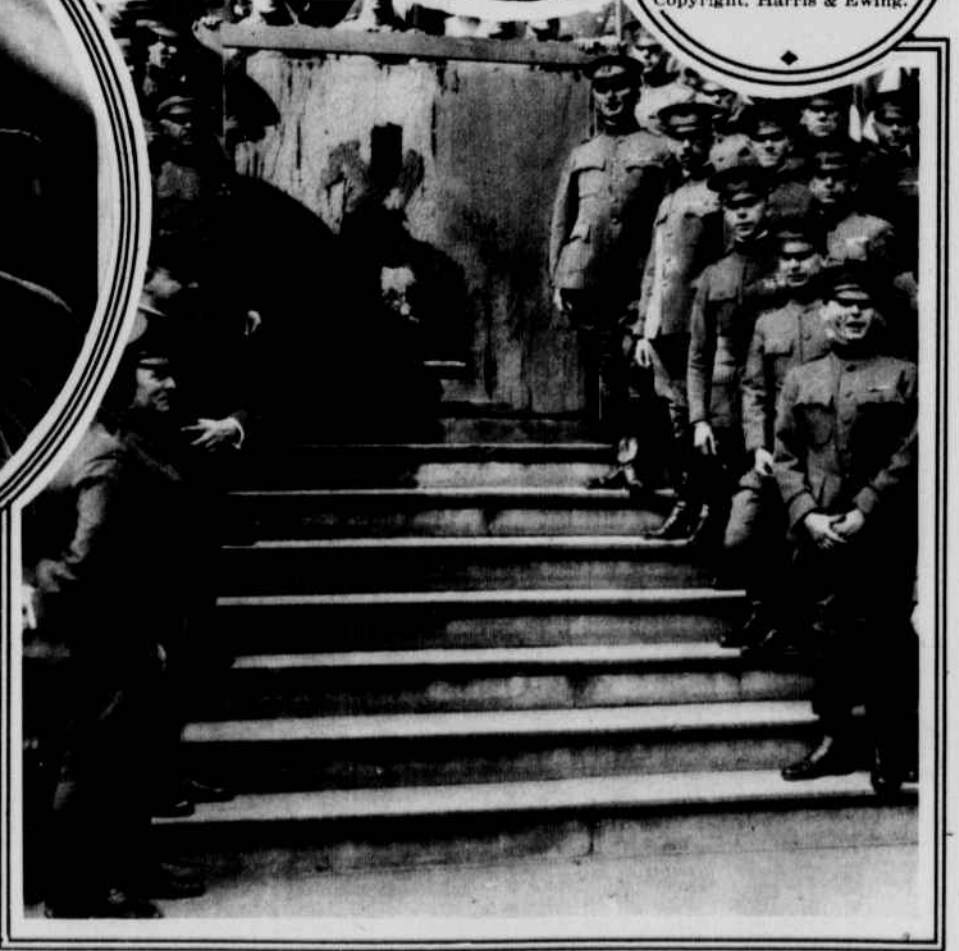

Copyright, Harris & Ewing.

Above.—The Secretary of War and Mrs. Weeks photographed on their recent visit to New York city. This is their first picture made together since he entered the Cabinet.

Underwood & Underwood.

At right.—All that is left of the flag carried at Washington's inauguration returned to New York City Hall. The tattered folds are in the glass frame. The officers with the relic are from the Veterans' Corps of Artillery and the 9th Coast Defence Command.

By N. Y. Herald Staff Photographer.